Herb Tressler, typical Pennsylvania coal miner, is one of about 68,000 United Mine Workers who are defying John L. Lewis' back-to-work order. Tressler, of Nemacolin, Pa., uses his free time to tinker with his car. Miners in six states, objecting to Lewis' three day a week plan, hope their defiance will lead to a five-day week. Plane Makes Forced Landing Near Hudson; Was Over City

Craft Suffers Damage; Local Police Given Alarm During Snowstorm

A four-passenger Stinson Voyager plane, believed to be the same one reported in trouble over Kingston between 1 and 2 a. m. today, landed at about 2:30 a. m. at Greenport, near Hudson.

State police at Claverack said the plane landed on a field near the Greenport school, crossed the road and drew to a stop in the school yard.

All four passengers, including the pilot, who was tentatively identified as Walter Gingsrich, 41, of New Brunswick, N. J., left the scene immediately, the police said.

Police at Hudson said the plane had dropped flares before landing and the Hudson police and fire departments were alerted for an emergency landing as police and firemen had been in this city more than an hour before the landing.

A wing, landing gear and part of the front of the plane were damaged as the plane apparently had "nose dived" at Greenport, state police said.

Kingston police were notified at 1:18 a. m. and reported that "numerous calls" had been received from local residents who said a plane was "apparently in distress due to storm conditions."

Local police notified Edward Francis and Thomas Larsen, operators of the Orchard Garage at Fort Henry, who are pilots at the Kingston-Ulster Airport, Albany avenue extension.

The pilots went to the airport to supervise any landing attempt and sent there also were units and men from the local and Town of Ulster Fire Departments.

All Facilities Summoned
Every available facility was summoned by the local police to make the landing safe as possible here in the event the pilot decided to come down.

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., emergency crew, the W. N. Conner ambulance service, state police and sheriff's office were notified, and men in the local patrol cars sent many cars and taxi cabs to the airport to provide as much light as possible.

Deputy Fire Chief Brett was in charge of the fire department equipment, and Engine No. 3 of Wilkety station with its lighting system was sent to the airport.

Police Sgt. William Messing, on duty at headquarters, handled most of the telephone and radio calls.

GOP Plans Bill Against Race Bans

Legislation Is Expected to Outlaw Housing Discrimination in Aid Projects

Passage Foreseen

Issue Might Become Most Explosive of Session

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP)—The Dewey administration probably will sponsor legislation to outlaw discrimination in privately financed, publicly aided housing developments.

One influential Republican said today the proposal could become the most explosive issue of the legislature's 173rd session.

He foresaw probable enactment of such legislation, he said, in the face of threats by insurance companies and others to stop investing in such developments.

Informants said tentative legislation was being considered "at high levels" in Governor Dewey's Republican administration.

The measure presumably would prohibit discrimination in the rental of publicly aided, private housing accommodations for reasons of race, color, religion and national origin.

The issue came to a head last July 19, when the Court of Appeals refused to enjoin the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company from barring Negroes as tenants in its tax-exempt Stuyvesant Town project in New York city.

The subject probably would have some political overtones.

State police at Claverack said the plane landed on a field near the Greenport school, crossed the road and drew to a stop in the school yard.

Million-Dollar Cash Holdup Stuns Boston; F.B.I. Called

Sino Reds' Invasion Smashed

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Nationalist Chinese commander of Hainan Island reported tonight that Chiang Kai-shek's air force and navy had made the impending Red invasion of the big island impossible.

The Hainan ground commander said the two Nationalist services had sunk more than 2,000 invasion craft (mostly junks) massed by the Reds on Luchow peninsula opposite Hainan.

He claimed his own forces were mopping up the remainder of some 17,000 Communist guerrillas who have been in control of central and the western portion of the big South China island.

The Hainan commander, Gen. Hsueh Yueh, refugee governor of Kwantung province, said the mopping up of the guerrillas would be completed shortly. Many of the Reds have been on the island since the war with Japan.

Meanwhile the Nationalist government proclaimed that Samah, on the south Hainan coast, was open to trade. Samah, also known as Sanya and Yulin, is the site of the biggest air base on Hainan. It was built by the Japanese.

The Nationalist defense ministry admitted the loss of Wenshan, a town in Yunnan province on the mainland some 40 miles from the Indochina border.

The defense ministry said the mainland Reds were now breaking through towards Hoku, a border town through which the Kunming-Hai Phong railroad runs.

(If the Communists break the railroad they will halt further flight by Nationalist troops from Yunnan province into Indochina.)

The defense ministry said Nationalist troops in far southwest Sikkim province had repulsed an attack by Red irregulars on the newly won highway town of Hailu.

Earlier, Canton and Shanghai were bombed and strafed in stepped up Chinese Nationalist air raids, the Nationalists announced.

(Hong Kong dispatches said the Canton raid was the biggest yet.)

Jessup Says U. S. Is Pat With West

Sees No Reason for Break With Britain Over Red Recognition

Hong Kong, Jan. 18 (AP)—There is no rift between the United States and the other western powers because some have recognized Communist China, roving U. S. Ambassador Philip C. Jessup said today.

Commenting on reports of a possible break with the British over their recognition of the Red Peiping regime, Jessup told a news conference:

"Because we reach different conclusions, this does not impair our basic friendship and cooperation."

The touring envoy also described as "wholly unwarranted" any belief that a break will develop between the U. S. and other western powers.

Military to Give 'H-Bomb' Views To Lawmakers; Bradley To Appear

Johnson, Bradley To Argue Formosa Not U. S. Problem

Expectations Are High Chiefs Will Support Truman Stand on Island

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley were reported by some senators today as prepared to knock the props from under contentions that Formosa is necessary to American defenses.

Johnson and Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have been summoned to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee January 26.

Republicans who forced the invitations for their appearance have indicated they hope the two officials might provide evidence that military thinking runs counter to President Truman's hands-off policy toward Formosa.

Senators who have talked to Johnson, however, said it is their understanding the defense secretary stands squarely behind the President's decision that this country will give no more military aid to the Chinese Nationalist Government which has fled to Formosa.

Interested senators said they will be surprised if General Bradley doesn't testify that international political considerations outweigh any military gain this country might make in aiding the Nationalists at this time.

Chiang Kai-shek's attacks on the administration's Asiatic policies, Democrats prepared to strike back.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, told a reporter he intends to ask the Republicans who are clamoring for vigorous intervention in Far Eastern affairs whether they are willing to vote to renew the expiring draft law.

"The people of this country are interested in the issue of whether their boys are going to be sent to fight out there," he said. "I want to know if the Republicans, who are so belligerent in the senate, are willing to vote to keep the draft alive. That will be the test."

Lucas has the support of an informal agreement among Senate Democrats—reached at a caucus yesterday—that they will support the President's stand on Formosa.

Meanwhile, a Republican senator's complaint that Henry A. Wallace favored America's China policy has drawn from Wallace the retort that if his ideas had been followed, the U. S. would be better off.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) told the Senate yesterday that "secret report" which he said was written by the former vice president in 1942 laid the basis for present American Foreign Policy in China.

Ferguson deplored the policy as helpful to the Communists in China.

Wallace's response was given to a reporter at South Salem, N. Y. If the administration and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had followed the line suggested, Wallace said, "we would be in a much stronger position in the Orient today."

Wallace said he had sent a report accompanied by a memo entitled "A possible policy line relative to liberal elements in China," to the White House on July 10, 1942.

Ferguson said that "the tenor" of the report to which he referred "was that the United States should shift its support from Chiang Kai-shek to the Chinese Communists."

Wallace said the documents he sent to the White House show that he had no basis for Ferguson's calculated and deliberate smear of the administration and me."

The State Department said it had no record of any secret report from the former vice president.

Prediction Is Made

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Republicans got a prediction from National Chairman Guy G. Gaillard today that their party will win control of Congress in November. The occasion was a party gathering, sort of a pocket-size national convention, called to draft a 1950 campaign platform.

Gaillard tied his prediction to a "if" in that connection. He said that if the G.O.P. comes out with a "definite, sound and convincing" declaration of principles it will strengthen the party in the November voting "and give us once again working majorities in both Senate and House."

City Gets One Inch Of Snow; It's Gone

Today's light fall of snow, generally little more than an inch in depth throughout the area, was the first to blanket the city and vicinity in more than a month.

The last fall of snow, excepting the recent light hail and sleet storms, was about an inch in depth on Dec. 13, according to records of the city engineer's office.

One other December storm on the 11th was only an inch and a quarter deep and the heaviest fall for the season was on Dec. 2, when five inches of snow blanketed the region.

Sanding crews of the public works department worked through the night and morning on hills and intersections in the city, and by noon most of the snow had melted on the streets.

State Will Make Film in Ulster of Health Activities

Picture Will Highlight Public Health Nurses' Work; Meeting Is Held

New York State Department of Health's office of public health education has selected Ulster county as the location of a 20-minute moving picture designed to show "what the public health nurse does, and especially what the community can do to help the public health nurses."

This announcement was made Tuesday afternoon by a delegation of technicians from the Department of Health at a meeting with Dr. Robert Broad, county health commissioner, and representatives of several local groups.

George Stoney, who will write the script for the 20-minute show, said Ulster county was chosen because of its "nearly unique" record of cooperation between lay groups and public health agencies.

Stoney, who has made several other medical pictures in this state and in the South, said he was "amazed to see how much has been done by lay groups in Ulster county."

Purpose of the meeting, held in Dr. Broad's office at the county health department building, was to enlist the aid of local groups in obtaining persons to appear in the picture and to assist in other ways, Stoney explained.

Present were Mrs. Edgar J. Clarke, Jr., president of the executive committee of the Public Health Nursing Committees of Ulster County; Mrs. Fred Woolsey, of Milton, president of the Marlborough Public Health Nursing Committee; Mrs. Reynolds Van Keuren, president of the Kingston City Public Health Nursing Committee; Mrs. William Hilton, president of the Junior League; Dr. Saul Ritchie, representing the Ulster County Medical Society; Dr. Broad, Miss Esther Schiss and Miss Blanche Armstrong of the county health department. Undercover Fight Has Capital in Dither; A.E.C. Reported in Middle Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Lawmakers concerned about the awful possibilities of an "H-bomb"—maybe a thousand times as ruinous as an A-bomb—are due to get the military's views on it tomorrow.

Some conservative estimates rate such a hydrogen bomb as "only" twice as powerful as the city-smashing atomic bomb.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's top military man, is expected to testify before the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee at that time, behind locked doors.

An undercover quarrel over what to do about making, or not making, a super-destructive bomb powered by hydrogen already has the capital upset.

The Atomic Energy Commission finds itself in the middle of the controversy. It has asked defense, diplomatic and atomic experts to give their advice. Some experts from the Atomic Energy Commission were on its list for a private session this afternoon.

Up until now the argument has gone on in the top-secret levels of the administration and Congress. It has now become so bitter and the factors involved so fundamental that some of the participants are inclined to bring the row out before the public. The big, and necessarily long, question is this:

Should the United States embark on the making of a new weapon which could kill many times the 78,000 who died when a relatively old and inferior atomic bomb was dropped on the Japanese city of Hiroshima, and perhaps destroy everything living or standing on hundreds of square miles of land?

From this stems such questions as these:

1. Does Russia's alarmingly swift progress in the atomic bomb race justify the venture of an H-bomb to beat the Soviets to the draw with such a weapon?

2. Or should Moscow again be offered a chance to agree on international control of atomic energy?

Soldier Is Killed In Colorado Blaze

Twenty-Seven Others Are Hurt, 39 Buildings Are Destroyed

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 18 (AP)—Flames flickered out today from a wind driven brush fire that lashed through Camp Carson yesterday, killing one soldier, seriously burning 27 others and destroying 39 buildings.

The fire started in the foothills of the Rockies, southwest of here before dawn yesterday. In less than 16 hours, gale force winds had driven the flames nearly 10 miles to within striking distance of the small town of Fountain, south of here.

Shortly after sunset the winds subsided and some of the 7,000 volunteers who had toiled throughout the day brought the flames to a standstill just north of Fountain.

Through last night a slight rain helped to keep the flames from spreading further.

Seven Men Sought in Wide Area

Gunmen Leave Million Behind as Too Much to Carry; U. S. Funds Stolen

$100,000 Offered

Brinks, Inc. Will Post Reward for Capture of Thieves

Boston, Jan. 18 (AP)—Crack F.B.I. agents today joined in a grim nationwide manhunt for an armed bandit gang that got away with a million dollars in one of the biggest cash robberies in history.

The seven soft-shoed gunmen—all wearing Halloween-type masks and navy parkies—carried off $500,000 in checks, but left behind another million dollars in cash only because their hands were full.

Like a movie thriller, they sneaked through six locked doors last night to reach the vaults of a money transportation firm, snatching five cashiers and guards before they could reach for their shotguns.

As a result, giving descriptions of the seven men was a daunting task for the entire eastern railroad while this city's police began one of the biggest roundups of underworld characters ever undertaken.

F.B.I. agents across the country were alerted because Federal Reserve Bank funds were included in the loot.

Ellis A. Huff, vice president of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, said the loot was money transportation firm handles the delivery of funds of a number of member banks.

In a special department order, Police Supt. Edward W. Fallon said his men:

"Don't stop until you find these men. I want every available detective to work on this case."

The gunmen in a "brink" precision raid—snatched the money from an open vault in the sprawling waterfront garage of Brinks, Inc., a money transportation firm, after gagging and trapping five employees last night.

A spokesman for Brinks, Inc., said a $100,000 reward would be offered for capture of the bandits.

"We have not worked out the details of setting up the reward yet," he said. "But we will offer this reward."

Cruiser cars roared through the city and outlying districts during the night running down a number of tips that proved worthless.

Shortly after the holdup, police chased at break-neck speed a five-passenger black Cadillac sedan thought to be the getaway car. They lost it in the city's West Roxbury district.

Police believed the car, bearing stolen registration plates, headed for Providence, R. I. The plates were stolen in Boston last week, police said.

"It's very obvious," Fallon said, "that these men used a master key to open all those doors."

While hunky patrolmen toured the night, hundreds of speed-pickers up suspects, alarms sounded and descriptions of the holdupmen along the eastern seaboard.

Eleven men were taken to headquarters for questioning. No charges were placed against them.

Shotgun-armored squad men roared into Boston's South End between Boston and Providence on a tip that four men wearing parkies had entered a house there. The tip was worthless.

"This job was definitely pulled by somebody who knew every inch of the company's layout," Fallon told reporters.

"It's a tough job to pin down descriptions on the holdupmen," the superintendent added.

Descriptions given by witnesses varied. The best indicated that all were about five foot six inches, weighing approximately 180 pounds.

Six wore rubbers, the seventh wore-soled shoes. The purpose of these was to kill off sound as they ran.

Trial of Brothers Awaits Jury Picking

Wadesboro, N. C., Jan. 18 (AP)—The murder trial of two brothers charged with slaying a New York filling station operator for his car and money awaited completion of the jury today.

Ten jurors had been seated when Anson county Superior Court adjourned last night. A special venire of 150 prospective jurors was called for the trial. Charged with murder in the slaying of James M. Shirley, 37, of Islip, Long Island, are Benjamin Ransom, 34, and Burton Ransom, 26, of nearby Rockingham.

Shirley's beaten and stabbed body was found in a water-filled gravel pit near Wadesboro Sept. 7. Two days earlier his car was found abandoned near Marion, S. C., nearly 100 miles southeast of Wadesboro.

Clothing found in the car was traced to the brothers. They were arrested in Ohio and returned here to face trial.

Shirley, a World War II veteran, left his widow and two children. Mrs. Isabel Shirley, 35, the widow, is here for the trial.

Today's Business Mirror

By Sam Dawson

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—The machine age has reached the stage where it takes machines to maintain the machines that turn out the nation's goods.

Factory housekeeping, or maintenance, has become so expensive that the nation's bill for it just about equals what the stockholders get in dividends. It is no longer just a matter of a feather duster and an oil can.

And some maintenance engineers predict the time is coming when the maintenance men—the ones who do the housekeeping on plants and machines—will outnumber the production men—the ones who push the buttons and watch the machines. This is because of the steady trend toward mechanization of industries, and toward automatic operation of machines.

So now they propose to mechanize maintenance. Special machines designed for various maintenance jobs are on display this week in Cleveland, where more than 1,000 engineers and factory housekeepers are meeting attending the first plant maintenance show and conference, sponsored by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Society for the Advancement of Management.

The nation's bill for maintenance and repairs in 1948 was more than $8½ billion, James E. Sutherland, vice president of Macdonald Brothers of Detroit, told the conference, and costs still continue to climb.

This is painful today when costs cut ever deeper into profits while mounting competition whittles at prices. As industry moves constantly closer to becoming a push-button operation, maintenance tends to become a greater part of factory costs, proportionately. In some factories it already runs as high as 25 cents on the sales dollar.

But maintenance is one of a handful of costs left for management to cut. Others, like taxes, rents, raw materials, labor and construction, stay high, almost to the point of becoming fixed.

How do maintenance men propose to cut housekeeping costs? Well, one way seems to be a little hair of the dog that bit them—machines. Special tools for doing the factory housekeeping and repair jobs more quickly and cheaply are being designed.

Engineers are coming up with oilless bearings, automatic oiling systems. Architects and builders are helping with simpler buildings, which not only make working easier and pleasanter, but housekeeping cheaper and simpler.

Engineers talk of streamlining maintenance, of mass maintenance, of preventative maintenance which anticipates and prevents interruptions of work schedules.

Factory housekeeping got its long pants during the war, according to a New York maintenance engineer, Gilbert I. Ross, who started in 1928 to urge the control of factory housekeeping costs.

A generation ago, maintenance was just an expense, necessary but only slightly considered. The war showed how great, how vital, could be the loss when machines broke down, or were idled by long drawn-out checking and cleaning.

Immediately after the war, industry was straining to produce everything it could as fast as it could, to catch the bonanza sellers' market. Maintenance of machines held its important role.

Now competition turns the spotlight on factory costs, and on preventative maintenance. In other words, on keeping that machine going, at a time when competition is squeezing the high cost factory.

Cutting maintenance costs, Ross says, isn't aimed at getting more work out of labor, or at cutting down on the number of workers needed. Rather, its goal is saving time on the use of equipment and lowering the loss in output from machinery shutdowns for repair or replacement while labor stands around.

The more important the machine becomes in our economic life, the higher percentage of loss when it is idle. And the more machines we are going to need, apparently, to keep others running.

Purchased iron and steel scrap consumption in the U. S. totaled 21,250,000 gross tons in 1949, 27 per cent less than in 1948.

Urges Motorists to Get 50 Plate; Attach to Rear

Albany, Jan. 18 — That new 1950 automobile registration plate goes on the rear of your vehicle. Motor Vehicle Commissioner Clifford J. Fletcher reported this direction today following receipt of reports that some motorists were attaching the single plate for 1950 to the front of vehicles.

At the same time, Commissioner Fletcher urged motorists not to delay further getting 1950 registrations for passenger, commercial, suburban, trailer and farm vehicles, as well as for motorcycles. The 1949 registrations for all of these vehicles are not valid after midnight Tuesday, January 31.

Registration renewals in some areas of the state have been coming in so slowly that motor vehicle officials fear last minute congestion and long waiting lines unless there is a speed-up in renewals during the coming week.

Hogan Says O'Dwyer Ill-Advised on Bets

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—District Attorney Frank S. Hogan says he thinks Mayor William O'Dwyer's proposal that betting on public sports events be legalized and supervised by the state is "ill-advised."

The New York county (Municipal) prosecutor differed with the mayor's statement that New York City's police, despite their efforts, cannot eliminate scandal in sports betting.

Hogan said he and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who has denounced the mayor's proposal, discussed the city's gambling situation "generally" as recently as last week. Hogan added, however, that he had not communicated with Dewey "specifically."

The district attorney, talking with newsmen, would neither deny nor confirm reports that he has been investigating possible links between police and professional gamblers.

Hogan has been reported politically cool lately toward Mayor O'Dwyer, a fellow Democrat.

The district attorney declared the police department is "entirely capable of enforcing the laws."

Mother of 10 Children Held on Neglect Charge

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Rita Rallo 34, was being held today on charges of neglecting her 10 children.

The woman, who lives at 49 Corson Place, Stapleton, Staten Island, is separated from her husband but has received some support from him, police said.

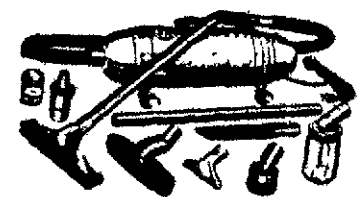

The children range from 11½ months to 10 years.

Two of them, Bruce 11½ months, and Thomas, two, were taken to a hospital for treatment for malnutrition. They were reported in fair condition. The others were being cared for by church groups.

Mrs. Rallo was arrested last night following complaints that some of the children had been disturbing neighbors.

Richmond County District Attorney Herman M. Hessel said he has ordered a full investigation.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 17—I have quoted excerpts from Henry Morgenthau's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Jan. 28, 1941, denying that he knew who wrote the Lend-Lease Bill, although he had appointed two of his subordinates in the treasury to draft it and they did this draft gave President Roosevelt power to wage war at his discretion without declarations of war by Congress and in flagrant violation of the constitution. As the late Charles A. Beard, the great historian and constitutional savant, wrote, his title should have been: "All provisions of law and the constitution notwithstanding, an Act to place all the wealth and all the men and women of the United States at the free disposal of the President."

Lend-Lease was written by Ed Foley, then general counsel of the treasury, now undersecretary, and Oscar Cox, a New Deal lawyer with an alert eye to the main chance. Cox was 36 years old. He intimates that he regrets that physical disqualifications made it impossible for him to offer his sword to his country. Since the war he has prospered as lawyer for manufacturers who found profitable business opportunities in war industries. In this practice of course, his political standing has been no handicap. Usually he is assertive, not to say pushful. But when the Senate was trying to find out who wrote Lend-Lease he was bashful. He kept a still tongue in his head.

Morgenthau's answers to Senator La Follette and Senator Truman Johnson were a shockingly evasive performance.

Senator Johnson wearily said: "So you cannot tell us the genesis of the bill or who was the principal scrivener who wrote it?" and Morgenthau replied, "That is correct. I think it was the product of many brains."

Finally Johnson asked flatly, "Wasn't the bill written by Mr. Foley?" and Morgenthau answered: "I do not think that this is a correct statement."

Ed Foley was present. He did not stand forth. He is, of course, an officer of the court, a citizen and was an employee of the national government, not of Roosevelt or Morgenthau.

Senator Johnson also said: "The only purpose of these questions is to find out if there is one individual to whom we may appeal for the construction of various provisions of the bill."

Morgenthau made the slippery reply. "I honestly do not believe there was any one person." There were "actually" two persons, both of them then present.

In his final book, Beard pounced on the admission by Morgenthau in his published diary that Foley and Cox wrote Lend-Lease. There was no quibbling now. Morgenthau wrote: "At noon, Jan. 2, my phone rang. It was the President. The green light was on. Ten minutes later, Ed Foley, my crack general counsel, and his bright assistant, Oscar Cox, were in my office. We discussed the requirements of the job and I asked for a draft by 10:30 the next morning. They fooled me. They had a draft ready by midnight the same day."

I asked Foley for the truth. He said he and Cox drew the bill on a Thursday afternoon in an office in the treasury just down the hall from the one where we were sitting. I asked the reason for the secrecy.

He said: "We wanted to make it appear that the bill had been drawn by the legislative draftsman rather than downtown. We got the assignment from the President and we drew it overnight."

I asked: "Why did you want it to appear that it had been drawn on the hill?"

"Oh," Foley said, "I suppose it was to avoid the impression that it was drawn by the administration."

"But it was drawn by the administration," I said.

"Oh, we worked over the draft with the legislative draftsman," Foley said. "We worked all day Sunday. We had a number of people there. We had Mr. Mc-Cloy from Stimson's office. We had Greenbaum, who was in Patterson's office."

John McCloy became president of the World Bank. He is now in Germany, successor to General Lucius Clay. Greenbaum was Morgenthau's personal lawyer. Roosevelt made him a general.

Distinctly, however, Foley said he and Cox drew the original bill in Foley's office. They got the assignment on a Thursday afternoon, drafted the bill that night, worked it over during the weekend with others and finished it on Tuesday.

After I had studied the record, I wrote Foley challenging his failure to reveal himself. I said he had a moral duty to tell the senators that he and Cox wrote the bill.

His reply employs the same evasions that Morgenthau utilized and he claims that all doubt finally was cleared up. Cox read his jotter and wrote that it would suffice as his answer.

Foley says Morgenthau's testimony "clearly stated that I had a part in the bill's evolution and he generously told Senator Johnson that I was more familiar with it than anyone else in the treasury."

True. But Foley not only "had a part" in the "evolution" he and Cox drew it and he and Cox and Morgenthau knew that that was what the committee wanted to know. And, inasmuch as Morgenthau never admitted that the bill was written in the treasury, his misleading statement, "I was more familiar with it than anyone else in the treasury" was meaningless, as any lawyer would know.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Home Seekers' Savings and Loan Association was held Monday, January 16. At this time, the following were re-elected directors for a term of three years: Samuel Stern, Henry J. Wieber, Harry Halverson, Harry L. Kirchner, and Harry Hymek.

Following the shareholders' meeting, the directors met for organization and re-elected Samuel Stern, president; Henry J. Wieber, vice president; Dewese W. DeWitt, executive secretary and treasurer; Harry L. Kirchner and William D. Costello, assistant secretaries; Samuel H. Peyer, assistant treasurer, and John B. Sterley, attorney.

In his report of the year's activities, DeWitt pointed out that the two outstanding events of the year were the insurance of all accounts to the amount of $5,000 and the reduction of interest rate on all mortgages which are current as to payments and on all new mortgages. This new rate of 5 per cent resulted in unprecedented demand for mortgages and during the year, 339 new loans were granted in the amount of $1,402,800.

Shareholders' savings have steadily increased during the past year, and the net amount was approximately one half million dollars.

The association matured four series during 1949, and as a result, $105,000 was paid to stockholders as dividends during the past year, and at the same time $38,000 was added to surplus and reserves. Dividends were at the rate of 4 per cent on installment shares and 3 per cent on income and savings shares.

Home Seekers' Shareholders have added services in safe deposit box facilities which are available during business hours.

The shareholders of the Home Seekers' Safe Deposit Corporation met Monday evening and elected the following directors for a term of one year: Samuel Stern, Frank W. Thompson, vice president, Henry J. Wieber, first vice president, Dewese W. DeWitt, secretary and treasurer, and John B. Sterley, attorney.

MARCH OF DIMES

Scientists whose work has been financed by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, sponsors of the March of Dimes, urge redoubled efforts in this year's appeal to the end that the work of the Foundation in scientific research and care of polio will not languish.

The assurance of progress in the fight against this dread disease is based on the belief that the people will contribute most generously this year because there is desperate need of financial assistance. Drained of funds during last year's epidemic, the Foundation must have $20,000,000 to continue aiding 1949's victims. And millions more will be needed for those certain to be stricken this year.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation, declares that the project for the identification of the different types of polio-causing viruses, it is now believed, will be completed by these scientists by the end of 1951, and one very important step will have been taken toward the development of some drug, serum or vaccine to control polio.

This is heartening news and if financial aid is a requirement for the fulfillment of this development it should be forthcoming in amounts that will leave no question.

COLD WAR EXTENSION

The prospect that the "cold war," with its huge cost and high tensions, will continue for at least 50 years is not one to cheer about. Yet that's what Professor Arnold Toynbee, the eminent British historian, foresees.

Toynbee is the author of a work that strikes deep into the basic nature of human history. He looks at events with the long view. So his comments on future trends inevitably carry weight.

The bright side of his forecast is, of course, that he sees no real likelihood of a shooting war before the year 2000. If his prediction turns out to be sound, the world will have experienced one of the longest periods without war since the middle of the 19th century.

But however grateful the millions of ordinary folk everywhere would be for such an era, they could not contemplate with joy the idea that the coming 50 years are to be a repetition of what the world has known as "peace" since World War II ended.

Toynbee isn't alone in predicting a painful extension of the cold war. Bernard Baruch, America's elder statesman, thinks the same. And so do some of our other statesmen and military leaders.

What they are all saying in effect is that Russia will not use its army to expand its area of control or influence in the world. But the Soviet Union will employ every other device known to man—and undoubtedly many new ones—to achieve its apparent goal of global conquest.

If that is the course Russia does indeed intend to pursue, then the United States and the rest of the free world have no choice but to meet the relentless Soviet pressure with equal weight and determination on the other side.

Let's translate that into practical terms. It means we'll have to keep a bigger army than we'd like to have, for a longer time than we ever imagined would be necessary. It means, furthermore, that we'll have to take the lead in strengthening and coordinating the military forces of other free nations.

We'll have to keep our own economy strong, doing our best to avoid paralyzing depression. And no doubt we'll have to continue helping other countries economically for a considerable time. Otherwise they might not be able to resist the corrosive effects of infiltrating communism. That's the outlook, say Toynbee and other far-seeing experts. If they're right, there's no use in our living in hope that an easy, relaxing sort of peace is just around the corner. Tension and strain may well prove to be the normal state for free peoples in the next half century.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

WE ARE KICKED OUT

Soviet China did not seize our consular buildings in Peking without forethought. Those buildings have been in our possession half a century. During the Boxer Rebellion, when Chinese rebels attacked all foreigners in the north of that country, it was found necessary to fight from Tientsin to Peking, as it was then called, to rescue the foreign residents of the capital.

After the rebellion, each foreign legation stationed troops in Peking to protect its ministers, consuls and other residents there. In Peking, the United States stationed a regiment of marines; in Tientsin, the 15th Infantry of the army. On the Yangtze, we, along with the British, maintained a naval patrol to protect life and property. It fell to the Americans, in the division of obligations, to keep the road open from Peking to Chinwangtao, a port on the Gulf of Chihli.

I shall never forget, now, in 1918, when I arrived in Peking, after a long and arduous trip across Siberia and Manchuria, I saw the American flag flying over those buildings and American marines, in their tight and colorful uniforms, standing guard. Americans who stay at home, in the comforts of a free society, can never even approximate the thrill of such a moment: the sense of sanctuary that comes over the wayfarer.

Between 1925-27, when the Nationalist revolution occurred, our people in Tientsin and Peking were again in peril. Old Smedley Butler, as salty a marine as ever lived, made his headquarters for a time up north, and by an astute bit of good old-fashioned diplomacy, he got a motor road through Tientsin to Peking. The purpose of that road was to rescue our American representatives should the Chinese Communists—the same men we are dealing with today—attempt to imprison them.

Subsequently, most American official business was done in Nanking and Shanghai, and Peking became less important. Dr. Sun Yat-sen literally hated Peking. He used to tell me that most of China's life came from the corroding atmosphere of that entrance to the Mongolian desert, across which blew the winds that were made in Siberia. He had stipulated that the capital should be moved south to Nanking whenever the Nationalist revolution succeeded. And it was so done.

One reason for his opposition to Peking was the existence there, by treaty rights, of the foreign compounds and the presence of foreign troops. In the various treaties providing for the abolition of extraterritoriality negotiated in the 1930's, foreign troops from China were eliminated. But that does not eliminate the extraterritorial rights in every civilized country for emissaries such as ambassadors, ministers and other representatives. These rights are incorporated in a series of treaties. When a revolution occurs, the succeeding government usually takes over the treaty obligations of the government it dispossessed. This has not been the Communist pattern since 1917.

Such rights are enjoyed by all countries with whom we have treaties in the United States and by representatives to the United Nations. It is, in essence, respect for the sovereignty of the oldest established chapters in international law. Its rejection brands the perpetrator a savage and criminal nation.

Of course, when the Russian and Chinese Communists got away with the arrest and imprisonment of our consul-general in Mukden, Angus Ward, with little more than a slap on the wrist by the United States, they considered our affairs in the State Department, they naturally assume that Americans can be kicked around and even like it. Dean Acheson sent gentle and carefully worded notes and finally appealed to the British and even to the Russians to get Angus Ward out. What laughter there must have been in the Kremlin when they got that request!

So now we withdraw all our consular officers from Soviet China. They have actually kicked the United States out of China and we go. We go like craven cowards scared to protect our rights, our people, our lives. What we should do is take a city—any city—Canton, Swatow, Amoy, or Shanghai, and hold it until Soviet China treats us with the respect that is our due. The American flag must not be a symbol of cowardice. (Copyright, 1950, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

PREVENTING TOOTH DECAY

For many years physicians have been seeking ways of preventing ill health, which, from the selfish standpoint, is really cutting down on their yearly income. For many years also, dentists have been seeking ways of preventing decay of teeth, which really provides their largest source of income.

The latest discovery in preventing tooth decay is the application of sodium fluoride to the teeth. Various communities have been able to show over the years that applying sodium fluoride in a certain strength reduces tooth decay by 40 per cent. As long ago as 1947, the Council on Dental Therapeutics, American Dental Association, stated that "the evidence is convincing that fluoride solutions properly applied to the teeth are capable, to some extent, of reducing tooth decay in children." Following this the Dental Section of the American Public Health Association unanimously endorsed the proposal that community programs for making this preventive available to children be organized as soon as possible. And finally the Council on Dental Health of the American Dental Association published a recommendation that topical fluoride treatment be used routinely in private offices and in school and community health programs.

I am giving all the above authoritative information about this simple method of preventing tooth decay, so that parents, teachers and the public generally can do their part in organizing or at least helping to arouse interest in this effort to preserve the teeth of children.

The application of fluoride to the outside portions of each tooth takes about 15 minutes, states Dr. John W. Knutson, Washington, D.C., in "The Journal of the American Dental Association."

"Dental health is the responsibility of the individual, the family and the community, in that order. When this responsibility, however, is not assumed by the community, it should be assumed by the state or province, and then by the Federal Government."

We should all do our share in getting behind the community drive to make this simple, inexpensive method of preventing tooth decay available to all children, thus insuring health and good facial appearance.

county grand jury in California has said that such seemed to be the case there. It cited crimes of all sorts, pointing out that the criminals in many cases had gone unpunished and that some "mobsters and gangsters" had repeatedly been arrested and released. Criminals often think they are bigger than the law, but they are never bigger than society; if the people are sufficiently aroused crime will be stopped.

Toss-Up to See Who Shares the Old Boy's Discomfort

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Only a handful of Republicans know all the details, but General MacArthur had much more to do with stirring up the current furor over Formosa than even the State Department realizes.

The general may or may not have meant to throw a political bombshell, but he has certainly caused more political headaches and come nearer to splitting the bipartisan foreign policy than anything in ten years—though, of course, Britain's simultaneous recognition of China also helped.

What MacArthur did was to have stern, private talks with visiting G.O.P. Congressmen, especially Senator Kenneth Ferguson of California, Senator Arthur H. Hays Sulzberger of New York, and Arthur W. Radford also argued to Congressmen who stopped off in Honolulu that Pacific fleet units should cover Formosa.

Kickback Aftermath
Judges sometimes have peculiar ways of handing down impartial justice.

Many years ago, when U. S. Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut of the District of Columbia was a babe in arms, he was pushed around in his carriage by a young woman named Helen Campbell, a neighbor of the Schweinhaut family.

Years later, Miss Campbell, 63, gray-haired and in need of a friend, came before Judge Schweinhaut, now in the prime of his life. As secretary to Congressman Parnell Thomas, she had been instructed by Thomas to arrange for certain salary kickbacks and, as a result of carrying out orders, had been indicted, along with the congressman.

But when her case came before the judge, when Miss Campbell had once wheeled in a baby carriage, he showed great compassion for the congressman, gave him several postponements on the ground of ill health. In doing so, the judge let his former nurse remain under the crushing stigma of an indictment for one whole year, during which she was barely able to make a living.

Finally another judge took the case, with less compassion for Congressman Thomas, more compassion for Miss Campbell. Judge Alexander Holtzoff refused further postponements, and in the end dismissed the case against Miss Campbell.

However, due to more than one year's delay, Miss Campbell has lost her civil service standing, cannot get employment again in the government—thanks to the postponements of the judge she once pushed around in his baby carriage.

Gilding the Dome
An artisans' row over the painting of the cathedral-like interior of the capitol dome has become so bitter that G. Bess, J. Edgar Hoover, who usually spouts in criminal rather than artistic pursuits, has been dragged into the act.

Hoover's F.B.I. is now probing charges that the Scribner Contracting Company of Washington, which did the paint job under conditions rivaling a circus, had violated its contract by using a sprayer instead of hand brushes.

The charges were made by two other contractors who lost out in the bidding, and who contend that the spraying effected a big saving to the Scribner company, warranted by the contract.

Scribner, supported by capitol architect David Lynn, vigorously denies this.

He explains that, with Lynn's approval, he used a sprayer only on the coffered surface of the lofty dome, where it was necessary to get into crevices and corners which wouldn't take a hand brush.

Scribner bid an amazingly low $26,000 for the job, more than $18,000 under the next low bidder and $37,775 under the high bidder of eight bidders—so the taxpayers didn't lose. The contractor attributes his low bid to the time and money saved by a new fangled aluminum scaffold—similar to a fire ladder topped by a platform—that whirled the painters about the dome's rotunda like men on a flying trapeze. Londoners Go Farther
London (AP)—Eight million Londoners now travel half again as much as they did in 1939. Each now averages 1,339 miles a year on 475 subway and suburban train rides. Lord Latham, chairman of the transport executive that runs London trains for the nationalized railroads, gave these estimates in a speech. He said there's more traveling now because people live farther from their work, go to more sports events and have more money to spend.

Eisenhower's Position Can Be Defined in Terms of Immediate, Long-Range Future

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 18 — General Eisenhower's true position in American public life has crystallized. It now can be defined in terms of the immediate and the long-range future.

The general does have an ambition. It is an ambition that is more difficult to achieve perhaps than to be nominated for the presidency of the United States. It is an ambition that seeks the opportunity to become America's most useful citizen.

To fulfill that role a man must honestly disregard the rules of politics and the pressures of those political folk who would use him in their party stratagems. He must be prepared to have his forthright utterances construed as a bid for political office, and he must be prepared likewise to say the things which can weaken him as the candidate of either party.

Today General Eisenhower chafes because what he said on the few occasions recently that he has spoken his mind has been discussed in terms of presidential aspiration. In effect, he feels now that this treatment tends to deprive him of his own right of free expression.

Whatever a man can say to deny that he seeks office, General Eisenhower said in 1948 and has repeated since then. But despite these efforts to keep out of presidential races, the general finds himself importuned constantly to become involved there. In other, through speechmaking or through conferences with men who quite consciously are striving to utilize him in the improvement of their party's chances in a political campaign.

General Eisenhower doesn't want to be president of the United States. He doesn't think his background fits him for that high office. He has spent his whole life as a soldier. He has not learned the ways of government on the civilian side. He points to his own inadequacy as a student of government and economics.

But, as his critics mentioned the other day to General Eisenhower, no man, strictly speaking, is qualified for the American presidency. The job is too big for any human being to master in a professional or career sense. But it does call for certain qualifications—absolute honesty, courage, a keen perception of human relations, and an instinctive faculty for coordination that can bring men with specialized kinds of knowledge together to find the right solution for particular problems of government. Toward the last years of his life, as the late President Roosevelt philosophized to some members of Congress about the presidency, he emphasized a collateral qualification—good health. For with good health comes the energy, the poise and even temper so essential in helping men to work harmoniously with each other wherever authority has to be exercised.

General Eisenhower wants to say what is on his mind. He wants to provoke the thinking of the people on fundamentals. He has no feeling of party affiliation or partisanship. In his mind, even the least of men, when asked his advice on everything, to them personally he feels a sense of obligation not unlike that which he feels toward his country.

For America isn't partizan at heart. It looks with disdain on the idea of party politics. It looks with disdain on the idea of party politics. It looks with disdain on the idea of party politics. It looks with disdain on the idea of party politics.

Naturally the general surveys the passing scene with deep concern. The international picture is a sad one. The domestic picture is one of strife that puts material gain too high on the list of proper objectives. He looks ahead toward the years 1960 and 1970 and prays that the extremes of social upheaval will not reach to our shores. He sees excessive centralization in government here as having been too long ignored. He fears that "gradualism" has made too many people indifferent to the

Nickels by Shovelfuls
Camden N. J., Jan. 18 (AP)—Panic vault attendants were burned up yesterday over a fire that started in a pile of 100,000 nickels. The blaze, of undetermined origin, burned holes in most of the sacks in the main office of the First Camden National Bank and Trust Company, scattering the coins on the floor. After the fire was extinguished, the vault attendants had the job of shoveling the nickels up again, turning them through a counting machine and re-sacking them to be sent to their original destination, the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank.

Support Is Pledged
Washington Jan. 18 (AP)—Three representatives of metropolitan New York's labor party have pledged their organization's continued support for nationwide rent controls. Walter Karschbaum, executive director of the party's Bronx council, promised the support following a meeting with Hugh J. Woods, federal rent director yesterday. Karschbaum said he also asked Woods to modify several sections of existing rent regulations which legally can be changed by administration action.

First United Front Against Commies In U.S. Is Goal of Legion Session

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

SEA Staff Correspondent

New York — (NLA) — The American Legion will try to create the first truly united front against the spread of Communism in the U. S. since the Red party was organized in this country 30 years ago.

In a two-day session, starting Jan. 28 here, an attempt will be made to establish unified goals, policies and tactics among all labor, industry, religious, farm and patriotic groups in America which, up until now, have been waging independent fights against the Commie threat.

The national groups which have been invited to send delegates represent a total membership of more than 50,000,000 U. S. citizens. It is expected that two or three leaders from more than 100 organizations will attend.

In announcing the meeting, Legion National Commander George N. Craig set forth the following two-fold objective:

First, we will seek to coordinate the activities of those citizens, labor, national in character, which have among their declared purposes the maintenance of the American constitutional system. Second, we shall seek to strengthen the hands of government agencies dealing with subversive activities.

"All-American Conference" is the name of the get-together. The American Legion, it is explained, is merely acting as the agent for uniting these groups in the common effort. Legion delegates will have no more authority at the meeting than those from any other group.

Experts on the subject of Communism agree that there has been much wasted, ineffectual action on the anti-Red front in America because of the lack of standardized goals and procedures. Even within the government, the experts admit, there has been little coordinated effort.

On the other hand, Craig explains, "Our Communist enemies are united. They are organized. They are well financed. They are able to do anything."

"To defeat their purpose all loyal American citizens and organizations must get together, pool their resources, unite their strength, fix their objectives, and put their collective shoulders in the harness of practical patriotism."

Groups which will be represented include the American Federation of Labor, American Heritage Foundation, General Federation of Women's Clubs, Kiwanis, National Association of Broadcasters, National Education Association, Veterans of Foreign Wars and many others.

Prominent citizens will address the gathering, although the exact list of speakers has not been set definitely.

The conference's leaders hope it will decide to set up a permanent organization to coordinate future anti-Communist activities. Just what form such an organization will take and how it will be financed will be up to the delegates.

In addition to uniting the Communist fighters, Craig hopes the meeting will serve to "solidify public support of American ideals and institutions."

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

Under the heading of "Boats and Boatmen" in the Kingston Weekly Freeman and Journal of Thursday, March 1, 1888, it says "The propeller Schultz sank in Rondout Creek." According to the details at an early hour on Sunday morning watchmen made the discovery that the steam passenger yacht Charles A. Schultz, owned by the Haber Steamboat Co., had sunk in the Rondout Creek, near the foundry dock of McEntee & Dillon, where it had been put in winter quarters when the season of navigation closed hereabout. Only the smoke stack and the tops of the flag staffs were visible at high tide.

After the owners were notified, a gang of men removed the ice which surrounded the sunken vessel for the purpose of facilitating the work of raising it. The steamboat McDonald, which lies directly ahead of the Schultz, will be cut loose from the ice and floated further out in the creek. When this is accomplished the Schultz will be pulled along the dock between the propellers Sharpe and Mills to the Cornell Steamboat Co.'s large derrick, which will be used to hoist the Schultz to the top of the water, when it will be pumped out. The owners of the Schultz said this forenoon that they were ignorant as to the true cause of the accident, but thought probably it was due to the bursting of a water pipe.

According to further details, the Schultz was sunk in 14 feet of water, upper part covered with ice and the railing that surrounds the upper deck was twisted and bent. The glass in front of the pilot house was smashed by floating ice. But Tuesday the work of getting three chains under the hull was accomplished, and "Mills" and "Sharpe" were placed on either side of her. But I guess she made it alright, for remember when she ran from Rondout to Eddyville, and to Fly Mt. Park, and to Evergreen Park, back around 1910 when she was piloted by William Pindie.

Looking further in the boat news I see: "Andrew Taylor, late of the ferryboat 'Riverdale' has secured a position as freight clerk on the steamer Brunswick, running between Brunswick, N. J., and New York city." I take it "Riverdale" was our famous "Skillypot," which ran from Sleighsbrough to Rondout. It is said, although she was fastened securely to both ferry slips by a center chain which rolled on a drum to make her go back and forth, and a side chain so she wouldn't sway too much, still she had to have a licensed pilot, because of the size of the creek.

Same date: "The new iron bridge to span the Esopus at Hightstown is being built by contractors Dean & Westbrook of New York city. The cost will be about $5,400. The City of Kingston and Town of Ulster will each pay one-half."

There is an item called "Farming 50 Years Ago" which puts it back around 1838. "In those days potatoes sold for 12 and a half cents a bushel, store butter brought 10 cents and cheese from five to eight cents. There were no canned fruits or vegetables. In those days, but one could fill his cellar with cabbage and pumpkins for a few dollars, and apples were had for the picking. The farmers kept no sheep, because there was no market for their wool. The women used the wool for home use." So says the article by James C. Wetmore, correspondent of the Utica Herald.

The Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel says demand for scrap went down in 1949 for the first time since 1946.

Senate Committee Gives Sharp Reprimand to Vaughan

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Major Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, was reprimanded sharply today by the Senate Committee which conducted last summer's spectacular five percent inquiry.

In a unanimous report on the investigation, the committee took Vaughan to task for accepting large honorariums as gifts, and it criticized him on other counts. Vaughan gave one of the freezers to Mrs. Truman. Some of the unit's went to other Washington notables. The presidential aide has said there was nothing wrong about his taking the freezers, or in preventing them to his friends. "The committee said it's all right for the President and his family to accept gifts because throughout the history of the nation, the American people have presented them 'as a token of respect for the high office he holds.' Nothing in the report, the committee added, was intended to be critical of that long-standing tradition.

Million-Dollar

desperados headed into the building.

No Descriptions Obtained
No descriptions were obtained of the man, or men, who waited outside the garage to steer the getaway.

All police division commanders were ordered to pick up every convict who had served time for armed robbery, along with all known holdupmen.

Some of these were expected to appear in today's police lineup.

All Kingston City State Police troopers and detectives were called back to work by State Commissioner of Public Safety John F. Stokes.

Police said the desperados apparently left the additional million behind because they were prepared for such an enormous haul.

Working with professional precision, the gunmen reached the wire enclosed vault room unobserved. One of the gunmen shouted:

"Open up. This is a stickup. Don't give us any trouble!"

Seven of the robbers moved quickly into the room and scooped the money, all in paper bags, from the carts in the open vault. They stuffed the loot into laundry bags and disappeared as quickly as they entered.

The five employees were trussed and gagged.

Several company shotguns were on a rack in the company office. The employees didn't have a chance to get near them before they were covered by the grotesquely masked robbers.

By Ordeal of Criminals
Police Capt. John D. Ahern of the special service squad said the robbery "was so neatly executed it must have been engineered by the cream of Boston's crime world."

Police received confusing reports as to the number of cars in which the men escaped. Some witnesses said one, bearing two confederates. Others said there were two cars.

A company spokesman said several employees have keys to the doors in the garage and "possibly some former employees still have them."

The million dollars left behind included an $800,000 General Electric Company payroll and $120,000 from Filene's, one of Boston's biggest department stores.

Filene sharply criticized the firm for "poor security it takes to protect such huge sums of money."

A representative of the National Security Corporation reported the loss is "fully covered" by insurance.

The stolen money had been collected from various business establishments during the day for bank deposit this morning.

Police said the holdup men used an entrance along narrow Prince street, in a tenement district in the north end. They climbed one flight of stairs and then opened the side doors to gain access to the vault.

Police said the doors usually open in response to a buzzer signal but the robbers did not sound any of the buzzers.

Thomas B. Lloyd, head cashier, said he came out of the vault to find himself looking into the muzzles of seven guns.

"I exclaimed 'oh my God,'" he said. "None of us had heard them approach because all of them—except one who had shoes with crepe rubber soles—wore rubbers."

The men all wore navy-type pea jackets, he said.

Lloyd said that Charles Grell, 44, a company messenger, was armed "but it would have been sure death for him to reach for his gun."

"It would have been sure death for all of us," he said, "if I had reached into a nearby rack containing sawed-off shotguns."

The gunmen all wore gloves and carried a length of corded rope, knotted at each end.

"They ordered us to lie face down on the floor," Lloyd said. "As though they had planned it for a long time, they quickly tied our hands behind our backs and then tied our feet."

"Then they put strips of white masking tape over our mouths."

"They snapped up the money bags off the little wooden platform carts and dumped them into larger bags brought with them."

"When they talked, they spoke in low voices. None of their voices was distinguishable."

"While some were picking up the money bags, others went to a rack where we kept the pistols. They emptied the guns of bullets. When they had all the money they could carry, they beat it. The whole thing didn't take more than 20 minutes."

Police said the men, moving like a well-drilled squad, apparently planned the raid to the split second.

Every move they made indicated they had the garage "well cased," police said.

The robbery occurred while traffic was light in the usually heavily traveled district.

The robbery was the second major holdup in Boston in two days.

Three masked gunmen robbed the Statler Hotel office in the downtown section of $452,700, $25,000 in cash and the rest in negotiable checks—Monday morning.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—Stepped-up demand for steel shares gave the entire stock market a shove ahead today.

Buying of steel issues expanded in the face of possible severe curtailment of steel output if the coal strike should continue much longer.

The number of coal miners now on strike is approaching 100,000 men, out of a total working force of about 480,000.

Higher prices for steel issues evidently reflected the widespread expectation that governmental intervention will avoid severe production damage.

The steel group, which shared the trading spotlight with the autos, advanced an extreme of more than a point.

Denham to Ask Court Order to Reopen Coal Pits

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said today he is applying for a court order to put coal miners back on a normal five-day work week.

Denham said a complaint charging John L. Lewis and his miners union with unfair labor practices is the basis for the court action.

Denham said his aides are going into court this afternoon to apply for a temporary injunction.

This type of application calls for a hearing to be set by the court before any order is issued.

Denham said that he is not asking for a temporary restraining order—the kind of legal proceeding which calls for immediate action by the court.

Conceivably, it might be weeks before the court would act.

Denham's complaint charges that Lewis has been failing to bargain in good faith, with the coal operators.

The Taft-Hartley law requires bargaining in good faith and also permits the N.L.R.B. counsel to seek court orders barring "unfair practices" by management or a union.

In a series of complaints to Denham last December, mine operators said the three-day mining week was an "unfair practice" intended to coerce them into signing an illegal contract with Lewis.

Denham had been studying these arguments and the complaint since then. His announcement today means, in effect, that he agreed with the operators' contention.

Denham said he would ask the court to restrain the union from "using any coercive methods, and especially any stoppage or reduction of normal work operation or productive employment in the mines, for the purpose of coercing the mine operators into the acceptance of any of the illegal or restrictive demands."

Whatever may come of it, it was clear that Denham's move was pushing the coal situation along to some break in the present stalemate.

Pressure is growing, too, for President Truman to step in under the "Taft-Hartley" law and ask the courts to halt a strike. A group of Republican senators renewed at the capitol today their demands that Mr. Truman invoke the T-H. law.

Action by the N.L.R.B. counsel would be separate from any White House move.

Boston Robbery Biggest in History

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—The million-dollar robbery in Boston yesterday was the biggest cash robbery on record, a spokesman for the National Security Corporation said today.

"There hasn't been anything like it in the annals of American crime," the spokesman said.

Other robbers he recalled and amounts involved.

Brooklyn, August 21, 1934, 11 masked men stole $427,950 from the Rubel Ice Corporation.

Boston, 1947, a robbery at the B. F. Sturtevant Division of Westinghouse Electric Corporation, netted $107,907.

Lincoln, Neb., September 17, 1930, robbers staged a $226,700 holdup, but only $24,276 was in actual cash.

About 10 years ago the Minneapolis Brewing Co., Minneapolis, Minn., was robbed of $80,000 in a hold daylight holdup.

A gang led by Gerald Chapman executed a holdup in the New York streets, October 26, 1931 that netted them two million in bonds.

INDESTRUCTIBLE MALLOY

The other night I dropped into a grog shop on 41st Street where newspapermen usually go, between assignments to exercise their eloquence and elbows.

"What's the most improbable story you ever saw in print?" I asked a police reporter.

The one about Indestructible Malloy.

Indestructible who?" "Mike Malloy was the name," said the reporter, "and I remember the details because it was one of the best stories I ever covered."

About a year before the end of Prohibition a bum named Malloy was run to him out in a sawdusty, stinky old Third Avenue where he did his damndest, demented that he was to create a robust shortage. It wasn't long before his single-mined purpose brought him to the attention of a quartet of on-tapping characters—the joint's proprietor, the bartender, a cab driver and, of all things, an undertaker. If the bum was bent on liquidating himself, these gentlemen told themselves and each other, it was only fitting and profitable to help him out.

So, suiting felony to thought, they changed Mike's status from that of an indigent to that of an investment by taking out three insurance policies on his life—one from the Metropolitan for $800, and two from the Prudential for $500 each. And in order to speed up the natural course of events, the advancement for St. Peter invited Malloy to drink as much as he liked. But at the end of a month, though Mike had poured enough booze down his gullet to capsize a washtub, he was, if anything, in better shape than before.

When the tab for the liquor became even more staggering than the bum, the amateur murder syndicate began to spike his drinks with various ingredients, of which wood alcohol was the least lethal. But Malloy's elbow never broke stride. Whereupon, they added five loaves to his diet—tainted sandwiches flavored with ground-up bits of the can. The bum, however, didn't even develop a heartburn.

By this time, the beneficiaries realized that the way to the old man's insurance was not through his stomach, but so one sleazy night after he had passed out, they dumped him into the hackie's cab and drove to a deserted spot near the Bronx Zoo. There they deposited him near a fire hydrant and, to make it easier for the pneumonia bugs, carefully covered him with cold water.

The following afternoon, the bum walked into the bar, complained he had caught a cold, and said he needed a few shots to fix him up.

What Fate obviously needed the partners decided, was a kick rather than a nudge. The next day Malloy passed out, they again took him up to the Bronx, but instead of giving him the water treatment they ran the taxi over his body two or three times. Some weeks later, his fractured skull and broken shoulder healed, the bum showed up again. There was only one thing wrong with him—he was thirsty.

Now desperate, the conspirators rounded up another lushhead, planted Mike's identification papers in his pockets, and repeated their taxi-over-the-chest technique. But, too recovered—the Dark Angel would have nothing to do with even a fake Malloy. Any sensible assassin would have called it quits, but what with free booze and insurance payments, the punks had spent over $2,000 on Mike—and besides, his continued existence was an insult to their professional pride.

One night, after Malloy had gone into his usual coma, they carted him home, put him to bed and turned on the gas. And when his heart stopped beating, they called a quack doctor, who, for a fee of $100, certified that the bum had died of pneumonia. The undertaker arranged for the funeral, but it wasn't until Mike was actually six feet under that the boys were convinced he was dead.

Several weeks later when the insurance companies got around to settling up, by a nice twist, all four members of the gang were in jail for other offenses. Naturally, the companies investigated, and the end result was that the murderers were charged with murder, convicted and sentenced to the chair. And a few minutes before the switch was pulled, they confessed.

"That's the true story of Indestructible Malloy," said the police reporter, "and when it was printed seventeen years ago, hardly anyone believed it."

"They'll believe it today," I said. "It isn't half as cockeyed as the recent dispatch from Moscow about slicing mountains with uranium." (Copyright, 1950, by Billy Rose) (Distributed by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Second—To marry his wealthy employer's daughter.

Lions Club Holds Round Table Talk On Delinquency

A chief consideration in dealing with juvenile delinquency is the county is how to reach the children who most need help with the facilities the county already has. This was the main conclusion at a round table discussion held at the regular noon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Tuesday.

Participants in the discussion were Hugo Wessler, the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, Chief Promotional Officer Edmund U. Burkhun and Dr. Henry Lambert Blythe, Harry Gold, program chairman, was moderator.

Burkhun noted that his opinion, Kingston and its vicinity has adequate facilities and agencies to meet recreational needs of children, but apparently the children who need them most are not reached.

Very infrequently does a kid of average age who is a member of the scouts get into trouble, Burkhun said. He also paid tribute to the work of the YMCA, YWCA, the Boys' Club and other agencies.

Burkhun also said that if training facilities for parents were expanded it would still be true that 95 per cent of those who attended would not be the ones who needed help the most.

Wessler pointed out earlier that "juvenile delinquency really is a parental delinquency."

A speaker agreed that the juvenile delinquency problem ought not to be over-emphasized in Ulster county, where the rate is low compared with some other areas.

Wessler said that, although this county has a low rate, "it is better to cure delinquency before it meets the situation."

Pointing out the 27 1/2 per cent of the married women of Kingston are employed, Wessler suggested that churches must do more by throwing open their recreation

Police Seek Auto As Link to Holdup

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—Police broadcast an alarm today for a Cadillac car bearing Massachusetts license plates in connection with the million dollar robbery in Boston last night.

Police said the car, bearing three men, had been seen at a gasoline station in upper Manhattan.

Massachusetts police had asked authorities to watch for a Cadillac car in which six men were believed to have made a getaway after robbing the Brinks Express Company last night.

The police report said the car was last seen at the station, its color and license number were not known.

halls or social rooms to children after school, to augment the good but over populated quarters of the Recreation Center, the Boys Club and Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.

The Rev. Mr. Dykstra answered that, although the church has not perhaps done everything it could, today it is "fighthing the problem with both fists."

He said the "darkened church" on weekdays is becoming the many activities such as Boy and Girl Scout troops, youth fellowship groups and others which now are undertaken by churches.

Dr. Bibby spoke of the growing attempts at conducting child health clinics, and urged clinics training for mothers previous to birth of their children as a good preventive measure.

He emphasized that it is a problem "no one agency can solve," but should be undertaken by many agencies in a cooperative spirit.

Commenting on the prevalence of juvenile delinquency, Burkhun pointed out that many problems which formerly were handled by the parent or the teacher or the truant officer alone now come to the attention of the Children's Court.

On the whole, he estimated that delinquency in Ulster county is now down to the pre-war level.

The discussion was received with much apparent interest by the members of the Lions Club and lasted beyond the usually strictly observed 1:30 p. m. closing time.

Rossellini Annulment Certain to Be Upheld

Vienna, Jan. 17 (AP)—Informed sources said today it was virtually certain that the Austrian Ministry of Justice would uphold the disputed marriage annulment decree granted Mrs. Roberto Rossellini in Eisenstadt last month.

Rossellini, Red Italian film director, has said he intends to marry Swedish Actress Ingrid Bergman as soon as she is divorced from her present husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

An Italian court last week made Rossellini free to marry Miss Bergman, as soon as she is divorced, approving "the Austrian marriage annulment. Roman Catholic authorities, however, had protested that the annulment was illegal and the Austrian Ministry of Justice announced it was investigating the circumstances surrounding the Eisenstadt annulment decree.

Ministry officials refused to comment, saying the investigation was not yet complete. Reliable sources here indicated, however, the decree will not be revoked.

In Eisenstadt, Johan Michalek, president of the district court, also expressed confidence the decree will be allowed to stand.

"It was my opinion that the case is settled," he told a reporter.

"The documents are all in order and I am sure the Ministry of Justice will support my action in granting the decree."

Annulment Is Final

An annulment of the marriage of Charlotte Mack, 39, Tarrytown, N. Y., and Daniel Mack, 40, Tarrytown, N. Y., was granted October 11, 1949. William A. Kaercher was the attorney for the plaintiff. No appearance was made on behalf of the defendant.

Bills Proposed in Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP)—A bill designed to establish special facilities for the care and rehabilitation of alcoholics was introduced today in the Legislature.

Assemblyman Wilson C. Van Duzer, Middletown Republican, proposed creation of a State Board of Inebriate Care, under the jurisdiction of the Executive Department.

He also would authorize establishment of clinics, in cities of 10,000 or more population, for care, treatment and cure of inebriates.

In addition to Van Duzer's bill more than 400 measures were dropped into legislative hoppers yesterday.

The included bills to set up a commission to study discrimination in public housing and a commission to study problems in the care of the aged and chronically ill.

Another would require the licensing of motor vehicle mechanics. Mechanics with five years experience would qualify automatically.

Senator Nathaniel T. Helman, Manhattan Democrat, introduced the proposal for a commission to study discrimination in public housing.

Other bills would: Give the Public Service Commission authority to force the Long Island Railroad to use diesel or electric engines if the P.S.C. proved that smoke from coal locomotives was "injurious to the public health and welfare of the people." (Senator Seymour Halpern, R-Queens, and Assemblyman Alexander Del Giorno, D-Queens).

Prohibit groups termed subversive by the U. S. Attorney General from using buildings owned or controlled by the state. Include photograph records and motion picture films in provisions of law prohibiting sale or distribution of obscene matter.

Give the Board of Regents supervision of correspondence courses and require that the courses be approved by the regents before they may be furnished to residents of the state.

Good Bridge Takes Thoughtful Planning

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

This is the third of a series of hands taken from an article written by Mr. I. T. Sun in the December issue of The Bridge World.

In talking to Mr. Sun about this set of hands, he told me that he thought the average player was too excited and anxious to complete a hand and trusted too much to luck. In China, he said, you must be careful to plan everything well, otherwise you do not live long; and he gives an example in today's hand to bring out this point.

There is no problem to the hand if you know which way to play the clubs, but why guess?

Mr. Sun, sitting South, won the opening lead of the three of diamonds with the king. He cashed the ace and king of spades, then led a heart which West won with the ace.

West now cashed the queen of spades and East was forced to surrender. The heart of diamonds was played by West and won in dummy with the ace.

Then the queen and jack of hearts were cashed and now, as Mr. Sun said, "Lead the eight of diamonds and do not worry which hand wins it. They will have to lead clubs, which gives you a free finesse, or if they lead heart or a diamond, you get a sluff and a ruff."

Soldier Is Killed

breeze blew northward causing the fire to head over the scorched brush and timberland. Authorities said it would soon burn itself out if the wind didn't change. Camp Carson officials said there were only "spot" fires in that vast military reservation.

Six of the 27 hospitalized soldiers were reported in critical condition from burns. The others were in serious condition. Their names were unavailable because records had been transferred when flames threatened the entire camp of more than 1,300 buildings. The camp housed 30,000 troops in wartime.

More than 600 wives and children of Camp Carson soldiers were evacuated to Pueblo, 40 miles south of here. They were housed overnight at an army ordnance depot and an American Legion home.

Several mountain cabins and summer homes in the vicinity of Cheyenne Mountain southwest of Colorado Springs were destroyed in the first hours of the fire's sweep.

The soldier died almost instantly while fighting a barracks fire. A sudden wind shift trapped him and six other men in a sea of flame.

Good Taste Today
By Emily Post
(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)
A PROBLEM OF THE TIMES
A young woman writes the following: "Mother insists that the average American girl of today is killing the little gallantry that still remains from her day. She'd even expect a man to brave the commuting rush out of the city after office hours to fetch a girl right back to town, rather than permit the girl to meet him in town. She is rule-bound, however, on his not letting her go home alone alone, even when it means that he has to ride equally as far out of town in the opposite direction. I feel sure that today's etiquette is not as inflexible as Mother's."

It is quite proper for her to meet him at the restaurant or in the lobby of the theatre they are going to. But after that evening, seeing her home safely is a very different matter. To leave her at her train may, quite truthfully, be safe enough, but it is not according to the code of a gentleman to permit any young woman to go home alone late in the evening.

Engraving Name on Plaque
Dear Mrs. Post: When engraving a plaque in memory of a well-known woman who was in private life Mrs. John Robert Lee and in her work Mary Lee, how should her name appear on the plaque?

Answer: Usually such a plaque is engraved Mary Lee and then quite possibly Mrs. John Robert Lee in very small letters and in parenthesis is placed underneath.

Scarf Acceptable Gift
Dear Mrs. Post: Is a sweater or a scarf considered wearing apparel and as such ruled out as a suitable gift from a man to a girl?

Answer: The scarf is accessory and would be quite proper, but a sweater would be rated much the same as a blouse and would not do.

Asking Guest to Say Grace
Dear Mrs. Post: I was called on to say grace and as I am not accustomed to saying it for my own family, it put me in an embarrassing position. Wasn't it wrong to ask unless one knew?

Answer: I agree with you. It ought to be asked of one whom you know is accustomed to saying it.

"What should I put in my hope chest?" is a question which is frequently asked. Mrs. Post's latest E-3, gives a list of essential items and personal clothes for the bride-to-be. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

(Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)
They are the six in critical condition.

The destroyed buildings at Camp Carson included 15 storehouses, three barracks where men were living and a score of abandoned barracks in a section that had been used to house war prisoners.

Volunteers worked with shovels, bulldozers, wet gunnysacks and axes to smother the blaze. The Red Cross and other agencies set up relief kitchens and aid stations to feed and care for the thousands of civilians and soldiers fighting the fire.

Symphony Scheduled Here Tonight, Played In New York Monday

The Indianapolis Symphony which will play at Kingston High School tonight at 8:30 p. m. at a program for the Kingston Community Concert Association Series, received creditable reviews for its Carnegie Hall concert in New York Monday night.

Francis D. Perkins writing for the New York Herald Tribune said, "The orchestra, which includes several women musicians, is a good and well trained one. . . . The orchestra played well in Dr. Sevlitzky's effective and unpretentious transcription of the Bach "Giant" fugue and in what there was time for the reviewer to hear of the Brahms first symphony, giving an impression of strength and instrumental proficiency in its various movements. The interpretation of the first movement of the symphony was spirited and interpretatively persuasive."

Olin Downes of the New York Times said, "This was a singularly unrewarding concert." Although in his review he commended the orchestra several times for being well-drilled and playing the compositions well, he took exception to the program material.

In fact both reviewers felt that the two new pieces played for the first time in New York were not top-notch compositions. One was the novelty, Brown County Autumn which was written for the orchestra by Hoagy Carmichael, native of Indiana. The other was Dante Suite from "Orpheus in Town" by Rosenberg.

When the orchestra plays in Klingson tonight a different program will be used. The local composers of the program offering are Prejudice and F Minor by Bach-Zador; Symphonic poem, "The Moldau," Smetana; Waitz Suite, Opus 39, Dohnanyi; and Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, Opus 68, Brahms. The Brahms symphony was played in New York but the concert was too late for the reviewer to hear it in its entirety and make the deadlines for their paper.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lester Luck, pastor of the Alliance Gospel Church, Morristown, N. J., at the Alliance Gospel Church, Franklin and Pine streets.

Miss Carol Davis was pianist. Mrs. Lester Luck sang Because and I Love You Truly. The church was decorated with carnations and lattice work of ferns, carnations and snapdragons. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was designed with white brocade satin bodice and net skirt en train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Ruth Kallert as maid of honor wore a baby blue silk marquisette gown with matching headpiece. She carried light pink carnations.

The reception for 40 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. Guests were present from Port Ewen, New York, Brooklyn, Long Island and New Jersey. Afterward the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to New York. She wore a royal blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. They will live at 9 Mohonk street, New Paltz.

Mrs. Moore attended Kingston High School and is employed at The Fuller Shirt Co. Mr. Moore attended Kingston High School and served two years in the army with the rank of sergeant. He was stationed overseas in Manila. He is employed at Skyline Manufacturing Co.

Maroons Drub Beacon, 74-37; Play Liberty Friday Night in Vital Game

R. Scheffel, Leonard And Rhie Top Scorers

Starting out from scratch again following their surprising 51 to 38 loss to Newburgh Free Academy last Friday night, Coach G. Warren Kins' Maroons and White basketballers began the long road back Tuesday night with a crushing 74 to 37 victory over Beacon at the latter's court.

Last night's victory at Beacon served as the Kinsmen's final tuneup before the pivotal game at Liberty Friday night when the first half of the DUSTO League for 1949-50 comes to an end.

Kingston, at present, is lodged in a flat-footed tie with Newburgh and Monticello for top honors in the first half. All clubs have won four of their five league starts.

In other vital games Friday night, Newburgh travels to Port Jervis while Monticello entertains Middletown.

Kingston's victory last night was practically a blueprint of the team's earlier conquest of the Beacon club. In the second game of the current campaign, the Maroons rolled to an easy 73 to 36 triumph over the Beacon quintet.

Apparently throwing off the pressure which surrounded them Friday night when Newburgh appeared here, the Maroons scored at will last night as Coach Kins inserted 13 men into the fray.

Scheffel Scores 19
Whether the club can make the long road back again, however, is another question.

Ronnie Scheffel led the Maroons with 19 points last night. Moll Leonard, center, who experienced his worst night against Newburgh, appeared to be back in form again as he swished the cords for 18. Jimmy Rhie led third high with 12.

Kingsmen opened fast against Beacon and held a 21-12 edge at the first period. The writing was on the wall for Beacon in the second canto as the Maroons kept on tossing in baskets from all corners as they biked their total to 43 Beacon managed to squeeze in

Pennsy Champion; Green Hornet To Box Field, Smith Tomorrow

Gethers Is Anxious For Return Bout

Two Pennsylvania scrappers, one a state champion, and the other known to local ring fans as The Green Hornet, are scheduled on B'nai B'rith's boxing card for Thursday night at the municipal auditorium.

Dave "Doodle" Popick, co-chairman of the committee in charge of promoting the sport, has advised that Jimmy Griffin, Quaker State featherweight title holder, is on the bill, also Jesse Gethers, Scranton Green Hornet. Griffin is matched with Ray Field of Utica, Adirondack District A. A. U. champion.

Gethers is down for five rounds with Willie Smith, Poughkeepsie lightweight, who defeated Libby Manzillo last week. Both Pennsylvania sluggers are rated as heavy hitters and ring-wise enough to meet anybody boxing under the amateur banner.

Roarby Prefers Pair
Pat Roarby, their coach, referred to the boys as "two kids who could beat a lot of the pros today if they wanted to box in the money league."

Gethers is especially anxious about tomorrow night's scrap. He jumped at the chance to meet Willie Smith, the much improved Poughkeepsie wallop.

undoubtedly a lot of rooters for The Green Hornet will flock to the ringside tomorrow. Gethers got his name from his togs which are bright green, both his robe and his trunk. And, he keeps as busy as a hornet from going to go.

Willie Smith's stocks went soaring as a ring attraction after his fiery brawl with Manzillo, the pride of Jeffersonville, who, up until last week was undefeated in the local arena.

Smith's handlers are certain their lightweight is a good prospect for professional boxing. "Willie is smart, can hit, and isn't afraid," said Jimmy Dundee, an old pro who is coaching him. "I pick him to kayo Gethers," he added.

All signs point to a hectic ring-war, no matter who is the victor. Expects Busy Night
Jimmy Griffin, stablemate of Gethers, who bosses all the featherweights in Pennsylvania, knows he'll be in for a busy night when he steps in with Ray Field, the Utica Bomber.

"Ray is a good little scrapper," he remarked, "but I think I've beaten better men. However, we'll see when the gong sends us into action."

Field, the pride of Don Dero's upstate stable, has tangled with some of the best amateurs in the country, having gone to the semifinals in the national A.A.U. tournament at Boston after winning the Adirondack crown.

Bill Singer, B'nai B'rith boxing chairman, commented after signing the scrappers for the top-flight bouts. "This week's show went over with a bang," he added, "and we want to keep on offering the fans the same sort of attractions every Thursday."

He promised a good supporting card, the first bout of which is College Basketball

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

A Nimrod Speaks His Mind:

With disarming frankness, Edmund Gilligan, the Rod and Gun editor of the Herald-Tribune, told members of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club that he did not consider himself an expert on matters pertaining to the great outdoors. The Squire of Bearville even jokingly admitted that he landed the Tribune job against a field of some 60 candidates, because he must have impressed Trib officials with his man-in-the-field attitude and approach toward the whole project of fishing, hunting and conservation.

Why then, you may ask, does a paper like the Tribune hire a man like Mr. Gilligan? If you have read his stuff, you know why. The sturdy, solidly knit son of New England makes no pretense about the scientific approach to the huge problem of conservation. He has his likes and dislikes, he prefers to catch wild trout, he shrinks from conservation department scientists and still likes to take hunting and fishing in the pure (unadulterated) form that man first found it on the universe.

About the Grand Banks:

"Give me one wild trout," he told club members, "to a dozen hopped-up specimens taken from state hatchery and planted in a stream. The real fishermen knows the difference, the moment the strike is made."

His devotion to a life-long battle to restore the pristine grandeur of the Atlantic fishing industry in the Grand Banks area that ranges from New England to Newfoundland practically amounts to crusade, although he tells you pointedly and repeatedly that he never considers himself a crusader. A crusader must be much too serious, he admits.

Gilligan's account of the fishing industry in the Grand Banks area; his insistence that ancient fishermen had found these paradises long before Columbus sailed for America furnished a fascinating adventure for the Katrine club members, many of whom probably had never heard of the Grand Banks, nor realized their significance.

Stay Away From the Scientists:

You got the impression, when Gilligan digressed to local subjects that he was apprehensive about the surreptitious, steady usurping of power from the Assembly. He pointed out that the Assembly has many top-notch conservationists, hunters and fishermen who understand the problems of the man in the field with greater sincerity than the "high priced scientists" employed by the State Conservation Department. They are best qualified, he believes, to administer fish and game laws.

On the subject of stocking streams he was firm, emphatic and even jocular. He described the excessive stocking of streams as a waste of public money. "The wild trout is the fish that a man, he declared, and any red-blooded angler would take one of them to a dozen planted specimens."

"Who ever decided that the pheasant was good for us?" he asked in feigned dismay, "and what did the American hunter do to deserve a fate like that? . . ." Gilligan referred to the pheasant as a "foreign bird" and wondered out loud if all the hushabout about pheasant rearing and protection wasn't an overrated subject.

The Pheasant, What's That?

Referring to the Conservation Department's concern over the predatory tactics of the fox against the pheasant, he pointed out that the department once conducted an experiment. Several ambitious young hunters were paid money to trap 300 foxes. The stomachs of the foxes were sent to state laboratories (at still further expense) for examination. To see, of course, if there were any pheasant bones or feathers lodged therein.

Potters Down Sixth Ward 68-53 For Eighth Straight in Y Loop

Angels Nip Fullers By 62-56 Score

The fast-stopping Potter Brothers, with the first round of the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League already safely tucked away, opened the second round of the league in identical fashion Tuesday night by upending the Sixth Ward quintet for their eighth straight conquest in the Y loop.

The final score was 68 to 53. In the other half of the twin bill Harry's Angels registered a six-point victory over Fullers, 62 to 56.

Pacing Potters to their eighth win in as many starts last night were Peck, Schoonmaker and Sess who all hit the double figures with 19, 18 and 14 markers respectively.

Potters edged the Sixth Warders by 16-13 at the first period and took a 10-point lead at half-time by rolling up 11 points to the losers' four.

The unbeaten Potters continued to roll in the third canto by amassing 20 points to the Sixth Ward's 15. Both clubs pushed in 21 points apiece in the final period.

Fitzgerald Gets 21
Fitzgerald, forward for the losers, topped both quintets in the scoring column with his 21 points on 10 fields and a foul conversion. Marable was next with 13.

A big third period spurge of 19 points gave Harry's Angels their 62-56 win over Fullers. After leading 16-12 at the first bell, the Angels had their lead sliced to a mere two points at the half when Fullers broke through with 17 points to the Angels' 15.

The Angels picked up valuable ground in the third canto with their 19 markers while holding the Shrimtons to 14 and took a 50-43 edge going into the final period. The Shrimtons outscored their rivals by 13-12 in the last quarter but fell short of their ultimate goal by six points.

Dunham Hits 20

Dunham was the big gun for the winners with 20 points. Goercke and Kearney followed with 12. Hughes topped Fullers with 18. Hooker and Goumas each ripped the cords for 10.

High Falls Juniors Defeat Cottekill

High Falls Juniors defeated Cottekill, 44-39, Monday in High Falls as Ed Campbell continued his heavy scoring spree with 20 points. C. Strobel tallied 14 for Cottekill.

Raffy, Four Others, Sign Cincy Contracts

Cincinnati, Jan. 18 (AP)—Ken Raffensberger, the Cincinnati Reds' winningest pitcher last year, and four other hurlers have returned signed contracts to the Reds' front office, Warren C. Giles, club president, announced today. The five pitchers are the first Redlegs to come to terms for the 1950 season, Giles said.

Raffensberger, a lefty, had an 18-17 record for the 1949 season when the Reds finished seventh. Other contacts were from Herm Wehmer (11-12), Irvell Blackwell (5-5), Howie Fox (6-1).

Hogan Gets Chance for Revenge Today From Snead in Los Angeles Playoff

Los Angeles Jan. 18 (AP)—Little Ben Hogan, Mr. Comeback himself, gets a chance for revenge today from Sam Snead.

Top two names in the realm of professional golf, they are booked to tee off in an 18-hole duel to break their tie registered last week in the $15,000 Los Angeles Open. The scene: The Riviera Country Club, with its 7,020 yards of par 35-36-71 challenge.

It was a belated play-off, postponed when rain washed out the original struggle last Wednesday. Barring a turn to bad weather, upwards of 5,000 fans are expected to witness this third play-off in the 21-year-old history of the tournament.

Today's winner collects $2,600, the loser $1,900, and both split evenly 50 per cent of the gate receipts. The sponsoring Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce gets the other 50 per cent of the gate.

But much more than the $700 difference in prize money is at stake as the two once again capture the attention of the nation, just as they did in their battle last week, with its story book finish.

That finish is well recorded in the minds of golf fans now—how Hogan, in his first tournament since a car-bus crash nearly killed him 11 months ago, had the little won, and how Snead, needing two pars and two birdies in the final four holes to tie Hogan, got them.

He got the last birdie the hard way, too, with the pressure of 10,000 hushed spectators hanging on his neck and a 25-foot putt waiting to be sunk on the 18th green at Riviera.

Sink it he did, and the 72-hole score read: Hogan, 73-69-69-280; Snead, 71-72-71-280.

Today Bantam Ben was gunning for a clear cut victory in his tournament—his fourth in the event—and undivided acclaim in his initial come-back venture. This was his first move to regain the throne of golf in the United States, the royal seat Slamming Samuel promptly took over when Ben was forced out of action last year.

One of every four persons in the United States lives in a community having an iron or steel plant.

Odd Fellows Are Installed During Rites at Shokan

West Shokan, January 18—Officers for the ensuing term were installed in an impressive ceremony at Shokan I.O.O.F. Lodge, No. 491, in Olive Bridge last Saturday evening. Installation was by Aaron Gray and staff of Bearsville Lodge, No. 533. There was an excellent turnout of the home lodge members with a delegation of Bearsville Lodge accompanying the deputy and his staff. Missed at the meeting was Past Grand Guardian Arthur E. Trowbridge, a stalwart veteran, who was ill at his home with a second heart attack. Present and mentioned as candidate to be endorsed for the next district deputy at the Bearsville grand committee meeting in April, was Past Grand Winston Van-Kleeck.

Refreshments were served following the close of the meeting with the customary euclyre and pinocchio games. The district deputy extended a cordial invitation to Shokan Lodge members and their wives to be present at the homecoming installation Friday evening at Bearsville, which will be semi-public. Long years of the most cordial fraternal relations have existed between these two lodges.

Following is the newly installed set of elective and appointive officers of Shokan Lodge:

Past Grand, Lester Spencer Davis; Noble Grand James McGlavin; Vice Grand William Stephens; Recording Secretary, Harlowe McLean, P.D.D.G.M.; Financial Secretary, Virgil C. Gordon, P.D.D.G.M.; Treasurer, Arthur E. Trowbridge, P.D.D.G.M., who was installed by proxy; Warden Charles Gustafson, P.G.; Conductor Joseph Fox; Right Supporter Noble Grand Alonzo Davis, P.D.D.G.M.; Left Supporter Noble Grand William Jordan, P.G., and a veteran member for over fifty years; Right Scene Supporter Jack Darling; Left Scene Supporter Edward Jurkowski; Right Supporter Vice Grand Charles Smith; Left Supporter Vice Grand Norman North (outgoing vice grand installed by proxy); Inside Guardian Lester Lawrence, P.G.; Outside Guardian Charles Jurkowski; Chaplain Elwyn C. Davis, P.G.

May Delay Program

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—President Truman's new tax recommendations to Congress now may be delayed until the first of next week. That was the word today from Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross. There was no explanation of what has been holding up the tax message. In his State of the Union message when Congress reconvened this month, Mr. Truman said the tax proposals would be ready soon. Since then the White House has been forecasting their appearance every few days.

EAT WELL for Less

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Better ways to cook vegetables is always big-time news in the kitchen. That's why I again call attention to Marian Tracy's new euclyre book—"Cooking Under Pressure." Here are a few reasons for my enthusiasm:

Acorn Squash With Maple Syrup and Butter
(Serves 4)
Two acorn squashes, ½ cup water, maple syrup, butter, salt, pepper.

Cut the squash in two. Scrape out the seeds. Place on the rack in the pressure pan upside down. Add ½ cup water. Cook under 15 pounds pressure 8 minutes. Reduce the pressure quickly. Put the squash on an ovenproof platter.

Put at least a teaspoon of butter and one of maple syrup in each cup. Add salt and pepper. If you have time, bake the squash in a medium oven about 20 minutes, though this is not necessary.

Teetsel Re-elected

Mathews, Harry Rigby, Jr., and Edmund P. Rochford.

Secretary Kuvit was asked to give a complete report of the past year's activities, his observations, and recommendations for the future. He suggested several changes in the committee set-up and enumerated some of the assets and advantages Kingston has over many other cities. He reported that a tally of the annual bank and savings and loan association statements showed combined assets of over $93,000,000. This is a phenomenal increase of $13,000,000 in bank assets in the past 18 months. He enumerated the value of the large number of relatively small diversified industries and the strong purchasing power of Kingston's trading area.

Jan. 24 was set as the date for a meeting of the executive committee to arrange for the appointment of 1950 committees. The terms of 1950 committee members expire at the annual organization meeting.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, ex-officio member of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors, was present at the meeting. In addition to President Teetsel the following directors were also present: James P. Byrne, Byron S. Chatham, Frederick J. K. Eitel, Adrian Kaplan, Clifford C. Rose, Victor H. Roth, Elmer Ryalence, George W. Schneider, Henry Singer and Edwin T. Strong. The next meeting of the full board of directors will take place on February 14.

Military to Give national atomic control before the American decision to manufacture the new bomb is made?

Gen. Bradley, mild-mannered infantryman until now has been concerned only with the problem of killing enemy soldiers. Now, as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, he must state the military's views on an instrument whose primary use would be to kill enemy civilians and blast beyond repair the places where they make the tools of war.

Bradley—and all other military and Atomic Commission leaders—is deeply silent about the hydrogen bomb project. But speculation has swelled in other, less inhibited quarters. These predictions of what the bomb could do vary widely.

In the conservative camp are some scientists who compute the release of energy from a hydrogen bomb at about twice that released in the explosion of a uranium-type bomb.

Over on the other side are people who talk of a bomb 1,000 times as powerful as present atomic weapons, one whose area of destruction would reach out over a 40-mile radius instead of the two-mile circle of destruction for the Hiroshima bomb.

Vote Is Agreed

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Warring groups in the House agreed today to a showdown vote Friday on a rule change that could block civil rights legislation and other parts of the Truman program.

Early Reservations Advised for C.C. Dinner on Feb. 2

Notices were mailed to all Kingston Chamber of Commerce members today for the fifth annual banquet to be held on February 2, at which Arthur S. Flemming will speak. J. Ellis Briggs, chairman of the banquet committee stated in making this announcement, that it is suggested reservations be returned promptly because there has been an early demand for tickets. The banquet will be held at 6 p. m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Arthur S. Flemming is a native of Kingston and has established a very enviable record. He is now president of Ohio Wesleyan University. Previously he was editor of the United States News, a key member of the Hoover Commission and he served as U. S. Civil Service commissioner for nine years. At present he still heads a committee to advise the Atomic Energy Commission on labor-management relations. He spoke at the recent New York Herald Tribune Forum representing the Hoover Commission.

Briggs stated that members of the Chamber of Commerce would receive first preference for banquet reservations, but that in all probability additional tickets will be available. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Chamber office at 5100.

Edwards Steps From Taxi Into Path of Trailer

Joseph Edwards, 19, of 350 Hasbrouck avenue, suffered a head injury in an accident at East Chester street and Hasbrouck avenue, shortly after 3 a. m. today.

He was reported in "fair condition" at Kingston Hospital later this morning.

Edwards was injured, police said, when he stepped from a taxi into the path of a tractor-trailer at the intersection.

Officers Henry Ronnenberg and Clarence Stickle, who investigated, said that Charles Tucker, 36 Smith avenue, operator of the taxi owned by Vincent J. Farrell, 290 Broadway, headed north, had stopped at the traffic light and could not get traction on the slippery pavement when starting.

Edwards left by the rear door of the cab and stepped into the path of the trailer, owned by Joseph Brothers, Lyndhurst, N. J. headed north and driven by Carol D. Paul, 161 Lexington avenue, Jersey City, the officer said.

The driver "had started to pull around the cab to continue," at the time, the report said.

HOME BUREAU

Plank Road Unit
Plank Road Community Home Bureau unit class in remodeling table linen will meet with Mrs. Marie Gunther, 47 Washington avenue, Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Those attending are asked to bring pattern of table top, pencils, paper, tape measure, pins, scissors, needle, cotton and table cloth.

The sheriff's office also learned from the Saugerties police that a plane had circled over that community and headed back toward Kingston.

One local resident said he heard the plane flying low between 1:30 and 2 a. m., and said its motor appeared to be in proper function but it was flying low.

Taxi cabs were sent to the field by the Perry and Colonial services and many privately owned cars went out to give added light.

A state police report at Claverack said that Sgt. Carl Wickmann, Sgt. Edward Merkle, and two troopers from there and two other troopers from Troy went to the scene of the forced landing at Greenport.

The pilot and three passengers in the plane, rode from the scene of the landing in an automobile, the police said, and none left his name. They had not definitely established, they said, that Walter Gingsburg was the pilot's name but it was the only one they had obtained.

The troopers said available information indicated that the pilot and his passengers had been taken to a train by automobile. It is believed they boarded a train for New York.

The police at Hudson said it was first reported that the plane had landed in the parking lot of the Universal Match Co., at Greenport.

Edward Francis, local pilot who went to the airport to assist if the plane landed here, said that the plane "could have come in," with the aid of the light from the many cars and the fire department flood lights.

It was snowing at the time, he said, but at times the snow became less dense, and he believed the plane could have been guided safely into the landing strip. He and others at the field at the time, however, heard no sign of the plane during the time they were there.

Deputy Fire Chief Brett notified police headquarters by radio at 2:55 a. m., that the plane was no longer heard and was believed to have left the area.

Jessup Says U. S.

ern nations who recognize Peiping. Unlike the Soviet bloc, Jessup said, the basis of cooperation between free governments of the world is mutual interest and a common way of looking at fundamental problems without the necessity of identical views on every international question.

He said the U. S. clearly has taken the position that recognition of the Communist government at this time is not the way to combat anti-Americanism inside China. There are other alternatives to accomplish the same thing, he added without elaborating.

Here on a survey trip of American policy in Asia, Jessup reiterated U. S. opposition to imperialism in any form.

He defined imperialism as "policy largely outmoded except in the case of the Soviet Union where control is being expanded over other people for the benefit of an expanding country."

Jessup reaffirmed American support of a policy of equality, independence and integrity for China. He added:

"We further believe that no single outside nation can supply all requirements or make all contributions that country needs for its fullest development in the family of nations.

"China will continue to require the technological and cultural aid of many countries — not merely one to two — if her development is not to be retarded.
"This was regarded as significant because of the presence in Moscow of Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist chief. Mao's mission is believed aimed at obtaining large-scale Russian economic and technical aid.
